Major Connector Road .acommended Linking 러t. 206, Cherry Valley

The Planning Boaro's Zonng Amendment Review Comnittee (ZARC) is recommending changes in the OR-3 zone off Cherry Valley Road and a new "major connector road" to link Cherry Valley with Route 206.

Both proposals are on the igenda for the Planning-Board's work session Thursday, November 21, but the new road, as a change in the Master Plan Circulation Element, will be the subject of an officially noticed public hearing. The Planning Board meets at 7:30 in the meeting room of the Valley Road building, Witherspoon Street entrance. Copies of the proposed Master Plan Circulation Plan are available for public inspection at the Clerk's Office in both Borough and Township, at the Planning Board Office and the Public Library.

According to Professional Planner Duggan Kimball, the proposed zoning changes for the OR-3 district would split the district into two halves, to be known as OR-3A and OR-3B. OR-3A would comprise the readily developable flat portion of the tract that is now in pasture, OR-3B would comprise the southern, wooded portion that is on the ridge The proposed change would also lower the permitted floorarea-ratio (FAR) from a maximum of 22 that now obtains to 12 overall for both parts of the zone.

This lowering of FAR, which in turn lowers the permitted density or coverage, is being undertaken in concert with Montgomery Lownship, which has recently lowered the FAR on its RD office zone to 12 Montgomery planned have been meeting with Township. planners on the proposed changes over a period of several weeks, according to Mr Kimball

Borough May Resort to Eminent Domain To Acquire Maclean Street Parking Lot

Borough Council has voted to acquire the Maclean Street Parking Lot from its owner, the Ivy Company. If negotiations around the Borough's offer of $231,200 prove fruitless, the property will be condemned through the municipality's power of eminent domain.

All council members present at the November 7 meeting, at which the condemnation action was taken, voted for the move. They are John Huntoon, Irv Urken, Mildred Trotman, and Jane Terpstra.

The lot, which is bounded by Maclean and Witherspoon

Streets, has long been rented by the Borough, which plans to continue using it for parking until replacement parking can be found.

At that point, the three separate parcels that comprise the present Maclean Street lot would become the site for low- and moderateincome housing. This would serve to meet part of the Borough's Mount Laurel obligation to provide a realistic opportunity for such housing.

In addition to passing a resolution authorizing the Borough attorney to acquire the lot for public use. Council introduced a bond ordinance authorizing the issuance of $237,500 in bonds or notes to finance the acquisition.

as the public hearing on this ordinance. If it is passed by Council, the Borough may move to market the bond for the lot 20 days after publication.

The vote to begin condemnation proceedings came just before 11 p.m. It followed a long and stormy session on the proposed special assessment district. There was no debate, and approval of the action was swift.

Reached afterwards, Mayor Barbara Sigmund said that, "it is always unpleasant when any level of government has to resort to power of eminent domain. But both the parking and the housing needs in the Borough were so great that when Ivy Company refused to engage in negotiations, the Borough was left with no choice but to initiate condem-

Route 206 Office Buildings Approved; Loss of Mary Watts Store Regretted

Shortly before midnight last Wednesday, the Planning Board gave preliminary and final subdivision and site plan approval to two office buildings on land including and adjacent to the Mary Wa''s Store on Route 206.

"If I had my druthers, I would rather see the Mary Watts Stole remain," said Board member George Adriance, "but I vote fairly happily for this proposa! Township Mayor Winthrop S Pike also "bemoaned" the loss of the one-woman gas and grocers store that has been a Township landmark for is long as anyone can remember, but he too joined the unanimous vote that clears the way for the two office buildings proposed as Princeton Galeviay Corporate Campus. The store and several nearby buildings will be removed to make way for the new construction.

The two buildings are a joint project of John F. McCarthy II! and RH Development Co., which signed on as a codeveloper after the original proposal was first presented 11 months ago. In the interim, a new architect and engineer have worked "long and hard," in the words of Project Manager J Halleck Hoeland of RH Development, to meet and overcome the Planning Board's original objections

As Mr. Hoeland outlined the history last week, the concept has changed from two structures of the same size on a crowded site olan to two pulldings of unequal size sited pass through the R-H zone (Peterson tract) and the proposed new OR-3A zones along an alignment which would continue on through the RD zone in Montgomery. According to Mr. Kimball, that road would eventually loop around to rejoin Route 206 farther north in

In Princeton, the new road is expected to provide for an "appropriate development layout' in the R-H and proposed OR-3A zones; provide direct access to the proposed OR-3B zone to minimize the need for future public road extensions into that environmentally sensitive zone; and relieve future traffic pressures on Cherry Valley Road, Hillside Avenue and Route 206.

Montgomery.

Mr. Kimball says a traffic study that the Township Commissioned of Garmen Associates last year revealed that the zoning densities in both Montgomery and Princeton were, as he puts it, "out of sync" with the circulation plans. In other words that the traffic that could be generated if the Montgomery RD zone (which is several times larger than the OR-3 zone) and the Princeton OR-3, R-H, and S-2 zones were to be developed at full, permissable build-out could not even begin to be accommodated by the existing roads.

The Garmen study said that even a down-zoning in those zones by lowering the FAR would not be of sufficient help, and that a new connector road was necessary — along with the down-zoning. This is necessary, Mr. Kimball cominues, not only so that Cherry Valley Road is not "overwhelmed," but also so that Route 206 and Hillside and the Route 206-Cherry Valley intersection are not overwhelmed by traffic generated by proposed development.

In addition to dividing the OR-3 zone and lowering the permitted FAR, ZARC also recommends that office buildings be a minimum of two stories in height. This is recommended in order that the buildings be more concentrated in their "footprint," rather than spread about on the site, Mr. Kimball

Plans for Special CBD Tax District Tabled After Strong Protest by Borough Merchants

The Council room was packed with Borough merchants were there to protest the possible hiring of consultant Lawrence O. Houstoun, Jr. to set up a special tax district in the Central Business District.

At the beginning of the meeting, Mayor Sigmund was handed a petition against the proposed district, signed by some 40 CBD merchants. The list included Nassau Hobby, Princeton Wine and Liquor, Hulit's, A la Mode, Juliana, Abel Bagel, Karelia, Clayton's, and Verbeyst.

Toward the close of the debate, Claudette de Clairville of Palmer Square said that Palmer Square already assesses its merchants for such expenses as Christmas lights, Santa Claus, flowers, and the care of Tiger Park. On top of that, she noted, there is a promotion fund for advertising Palmer Square throughout the state and in the New York Times.

"How much more can we do?" she asked.

Mayor Sigmund responded that the rest of downtown needs some of what Collins does. "We need promotions. We have to think of Princeton Borough as a business community, not a conglomeration of merchants.'

Although the developer Benedict Yedlin's Foulet subdivision has not received all the approvals that put the individual lots on the 1986 Township tax map, Mr. Yedlin says be too is experiencing extraordinarily high interest in his development.

Planning 17 high-priced contemporary houses on Andrews Lane as the first phase of a 35-unit development, Mr. Yedlin has done little more, he says, than plant a sign announcing the subdivision on Cherry Hill Road while he installs roads and sewer lines. Postscript to Election

The loss of seat Democratic Township Committee to a Republican in last week's election resulted in the first one-party Township government in nearly 20 years.

In November, 1968, James A. Floyd and Thomas B. Hartmann defeated Carl C. Schafer and Burton Peskin to beome the first Democrats elected to Township Committee in a decade, according to TOWN TOPICS' files. It took another election two years later before the Democrats had gained enough of a foothold — three of the five committee members - to elect the Township's first Democratic Mayor.

On January 1, 1971 Mr. Floyd was sworn in as the first Democratic mayor in the Township and the first black mayor in either the Borough or Township. His fellow Democrats on Committee were Jay Bleiman, whose election in November tipped the halance, and Mr. Hartman

Topics of the Town

Devine, Baldwin, and Peters, an executive consulting firm in New York City.

According to Mr. Peters, the Campaign for Hun is the most ambitious fund-raising venture undertaken by the school. It is designed to culminate in the 75th anniversary celebration of the school, which will take place in 1989.

In recent years, the school has conducted two successful capital campaigns. In 1979 it raised $500,000 to establish a Faculty Endowment Fund and to build a track and field facility. In 1974 it launched a $750,000 campaign to build the Student Activities Center, a facility which now houses the middle school as well as art and music studios, woodworking room, photography laboratory, bookstore, typing room, student and faculty lounges, and dean's offices.

The current Campaign for Hun will provide for construction of a new Science and Mathematics Center, at a cost of $1,000,000; a Computer Center, at $600,000; and a Learning Skills Center and expanded Library, at $500,000. An endowment of $1,300,000 will provide continuing support for these facilities, which will be housed in the new wing.

The campaign will also provide for faculty housing and dormitory improvements, at a cost of $1,500,000; an Aquatic Center, at $2,000,000; and a Fine Arts Center, at $1,500,000. Endowment for these three additional facilities and for support of faculty salaries, will total $2,100,000.

NEW ROADWAY EYED

Behind Volvo, WaWa. Mayor Sigmund is expected to present a plan to construct a new right of way between Olden Street and WaWa at a meeting of the Site Plan Review Advisory Board (SPRAB) scheduled for tonight (Wednesday, Novem-

The right of way would run across the backs of several Nassau Street lots for about 700 feet to the University-owned between WaWa Volvo. Earlier this year, Davidson's appeared before the Zoning Board with a request to move to the Volvo site.

The roadway would be used by Davidson's and WaWa customers as well as by persons working in the other buildings along the way. Some entrances along Nassau Street might be eliminated.

The Borough also wants to provide a traffic light at the intersection of Olden and Nassau for easier turning and increased pedestrian safety

The new roadway would include 11 parking meters. If constructed, it would also lead to the elimination of 11 parking spaces from Davidson's site

The mayor noted that the opening up of backs of lots also opens up the possibility of new parking.

Amnesty Brings Avalanche — On Final Day

Borough Violations Clerk Robyn McKee had predicted it, and Mayor Barbara Sigmund commented that "it kind of shows the psychology of the thing.

Both were talking about the final day of Mayor Sigmund's month-long amnesty program for parking ticket scofflaws. On Thursday, October 31, the final day, $9,483 poured into the Borough coffers - more than half of the $17,500 collected during the entire month.

"Isn't that marvelous," said Mayor Sigmund, who felt vindicated at last. Virtually no one had responded to her offer of avoiding any late fines in the first days of October.

Mayor Sigmund also offered a hig salute to the members of the Violations Department who volunteered their time and worked late during the last week. On the final night, she said, they had to work past 10 until all the money was counted.

We were swamped," agreed a member of the Department who said that most who chose to take advantage of the amnesty offer came in to pay in person rather than use the mail.

'I think they all deserve some kind of commendation," concluded Mayor Sigmund, in singling the praises of the Violation Department staff.

Topics of the Town

A good portion of this proposed right of way is owned by Princeton University.

We have begun negotiations with the university," said Mayor Sigmund, "and things are proceeding smoothly." She added that the deal would involve a land swap rather than an exchange of monies between Princeton Borough and Princeton University.

She declined to disclose the Borough lands that are under consideration for this swap.

The mayor added that negotiations have also begun with the three other principal property owners at the site.

Mayor Sigmund said the plan for the new right of way was not in direct response to Davidson's wish to move to the Borough's East End, although she admitted that it was an impetus Itather, she said, the plan evolved out of an expressed desire on the part of some East End store owners for moderate redevelopment of the area as well as the need for the Borough to find a zone in which to implement some incentive znning for Mount Laurel apartments.

The Borough plan will be presented to the SPRAB as an alternative plan to Davidson's, which is also on the agenua for the November 13 meeting.

To the Editor of Town Topics: Though the "night before Christmas" is still some time away, the Princeton Service Unit of the Salvation Army invites area residents who have not already done so to support its annual Holiday projects: the distribution of food to needy families and toys to underprivileged children - including 12 dozen dolls dressed with loving care in handmade clothing and also the distribution of Holiday stockings to Princeton Hospital patients on Christmas

Kind souls who wish to do so are asked to send contributions by check made out to the Princeton Service Unit -Salvation Army, to Mrs. Robert A. Nelson, 140 Hun Road, Princeton, NJ 08540. Be assured that your support for these projects will be much ap-

Borough Problems.

To the Editor of Town Topics: I very much appreciate the opportunity to address this letter, first, to the many friends who share my concern for the quality of community and public life in Princeton. Thank you for coming out in the recent election. Thank you for your support. The election results underline the great importance of voting - the most fundamental exercise of political privilege and public responsibility I would also like to address a few thoughts to Mayor and Council, for the recent campaign has helped to underline the urgency of certain problems and the need for Mayor and Council to address them in the new term. There were two major themes in any campaign - leadership and representation In the leadership vein, I was the only candidate to speak to three issues:

Mercer County and the development issue - People feel we are paying a great deal in County taxes and getting little or nothing back. So, instead of feeding the county through support of its legal and planning initiatives, why not get the county to feed something back to us?

But it is not my sense of priorities but those of citizens which are overriding. And here, I think, the message is clear: the overriding issue is TAXES. Somehow, we must find a way to help those whom rising tax bills would drive out of town, especially those who now or over long spans of years have been part of the precious fabric of life of this community. That is the main challenge, not only to Mayor and Council, but to all of us.

According to George C. Kuehn of Route 27, the New Jersey Water Supply Authority, which is conducting the dredging of 32-miles of the D&R Canal in order to improve the flow of water for customers to the north, acknowledges that the sediment from the canal 'contains higher than normal levels of lead, chromium, manganese" and other "heavy materials." Donald Kroecke, senior project engineer with the Authority, told Mr. Kuehn in phone calls that the dredge spoil was only to be disposed of at a designated landfill site in this case the Edgeboro Land-

The Army Corps of Engineers is the agency that issues the permits for disposal of the dredge spoil, and the permit specifies that the material is not to be dumped in the flood says that the landfill site to the observed dumping loads of wet black sediment, is at the edge of Carter Brook, which flows into the Millstone River.

It is Mr. Kuehn's contention, based on his neighbor's record-from the D&R Canal dredging ed observations of trucks coming and going, and his own observation of the landfill site, that illegal dumping was going on for a period of a month, from late September to late October.

The original design calling for given way to traditional "rosy" brick, he said

In place of underground storm water detention vaults, which would have required blasting or digging into the rocky subsoil, concrete walls are planned to enclose storm water detention areas. The walls would be three-feet high but would not obtrude above the ground level of the adjacent parking lots because of the way the land slopes, according to the engineer.

In the public hearing on the proposal, several residents from the Dogwood Hill development directly behind the site spoke about the need for buffer planting at the rear edge of the office properties. The developer was agreeable to providing such planting, including evergreens, and to meeting with members of the Dogwood Hill Homeowners Association to work out the details. Residents also requested that parking lot lighting be toned down as much as possible.

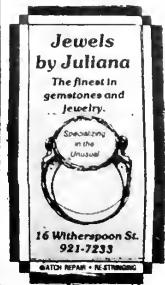

Planning Board members suggested a sidewalk hetween the two huildings. The developer pointed out that constructing something crossing the stream corridor would require permission from the Department of Environmental Protection, but he was willing to give it a try if the Planning Board would understand he might not be successful

Developer's Taste. Some members wanted to look at a mock-up of the two structures, showing proposed building materials and colors; others objected, saying that was a matter of the developer's own taste. The developer has agreed to pay $150,000 toward the cost of a proposed new road linking Route 206 and Cherry Valley Road (see related

Asked what was proposed for the remaining 21 acres in the residential zone, four-acre minimum lot size, Mr. Hoeland said there were "no plans" at the present but the developer was not "giving up the right" to develop that land at a future

The matter of variances for sign size and location was deferred. Princeton Gateway Corporate Campus sought two signs, each 15 feet, on which to print the full title, plus "North Building" or "South Building" in four-inch letters. The Township recognizes that its sign ordinance, permitting signs no larger than one-square foot, is too restrictive, but a new ordinance sideration, does not yet have any numbers in it for what is permissable

Violations

On October 30 he and his neighbors filed a formal complaint with the Franklin Township authorities demanding a halt to the dumping, and since then the only activity has been covering of the affected sites on weekends, he reports.

Mr. Kuehn learned from Mr. Kroecke of the Water Supply Authority that there is a ticket inventory system that theoretically serves as a check on the trucks and where they are dumped. A truck driver is issued a ticket as he leaves the D&R Canal site with a full load. The ticket is collected at the landfill site.

Loads Not Accounted For. Mr. Kroecke has acknowledged that on Saturday, October 26, there were six or seven loads that were not accounted for at the Edgeboro Landfill in East Brunswick. Based on the truck activity over a period of a week or more recorded by a neighbor, Mr. Kuehn and the neighbor (who asked not to be identified) estimate that there were between 125 and 150 truckloads dumped illegally in the DiFlorio landfill off Route 27 in a month's time.

Mr. Kroecke says that Conti Construction will have the "six or seven" loads removed, at its own cost, but he seems unwilling, Mr. Kuehn says, to acknowledge the violation may have been far more serious and of a bigger scope. Mr Kuehn wants all 125-150 loads, that he claims were dumped, removed.

Mr. Kuehn was also in touch with the Army Corps of Engineers at its Philadelphia Office. The Corps has the power to revoke its own permit in instances of violation. He says he received some satisfaction from one official, who, he says. seemed impressed by the seriousness of the matter.

Last week, John Thomas of the Army Corps Department of Enforcement and Surveillance inspected the site and, although he confirmed that dredge spoil had been dumped there, he said that it was not in a wetland area because it was at the top of a 20-foot embankment.

Mr. Kroecke has sent letters noting Mr. Kuehn's complaint to various authorities, including those at PRC Engineering in Trenton, consultants for the project, and to Mr. Thomas, inspector for the Army Corps of Engineers. Copies were also sent to Rocco Ricci, executive director of the New Jersey Water Supply Authority, Michael Galley, chief engineer, and to officials in the New Jersey Division of Building Construction which bears supervisory responsibility for the D&R Canal project.

Mr Kuehn feels, however, that these letters are an attempt to placate him, to deal with only the six or seven illegal loads that are being acknowledged, and not to deal with what he feels is the gravity of the problem.

pleasure of owning your own home without the maintenance and upkeep. Don't mow the lawn, swim in the pool or play tennis instead.

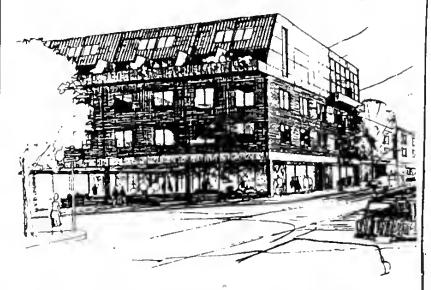

We have several in Princeton Horizons and Whispering Woods - from one to three bedrooms and priced from $89,000 to $131,500. We also have a very special townhouse in Plainsboro overlooking Greenacres Park and Pond. Why not call us for a tour of "the good life"?

Joyous and Polished 'Boy Friend' Is Offered; A 'Big Little Show' by Princeton's Triangle

Sandy Wilson's musical of the Roaring Twenties, The Boy Friend, is understandably popular among college players and audiences alike: it is lively, it is funny, it provides ample opportunity for hamming and showing off some of the less subtle styles of acting (Joy for the young actor: French and British accents in one show!), it has dancing, and it features college-aged characters in the throes of dating dilemmas that seem to hit the college-aged particularly hard.

If I remember correctly, this is the second time the Princeton University Triangle Club has produced The Boy Friend in the past decade. It is also, I hasten to add, the production to see, not just because it is the one now playing, but because it is the more joyous and polished of the two.

To my mind The Boy Friend is not one of the highlights in the history of musical theater Its denouement dispenses with the usual explanations and instead goes directly to the happy conclusion, which was foregone anyway But while brevity may well be the soul of condision, and hallways neave this show feeling something has been left out or compressed in the interest of time; for example, why was Tony fleeing from his parents or lost to them in the first place, and what arrested the flight in act three?

But, as slim as the book is, The Boy Friend does feature some good numbers - which are reprised repeatedly, as if to insure that you leave the theater humming them, and also to fill out the show - and it most certainly is entertaining, particularly in Triangle's current production. In all the noise and excitement she makes this a character to care about.

FILM ESSAY DUE

At Kresge. Koyannisquatsi, the extraordinary 87-minute visual tone poem by director Godfrey Reggio and composer Philip Glass, will receive its Princeton area premiere as the next production in the Moviesfrom-McCarter series at Kresge Auditorium. The film Wednesday, November 20, at 7:30 and 9 each evening.

The film, whose title comes from a Hopi Indian word meaning "life out of balance," is a pictorial tour done without narrative or commentary, on nature, man, and the state of civilization in contemporary America Set to a mesmerizing score by the avant-garde composer Philip Glass (Einstein on the Beach), it is less a documentary than an essay in sound and images, from dunes and clouds to Los Angeles freeways and Manhattan streets.

Using time-lapse, slow motion, aerial and infra-red photography, director Godfrey Reggio and photographer Ron Fricke create a seductive, nonverbal indictment of the industrial culture

Production of 'Dames at Sea' Sunk; 'Curley McDimple' Comes to Rescue

Three weeks before the fully-cast production of the dancing musical Dames at Sea was to open at the Off- Broadstreet Theater in Hopewell, producer Bob Thick was informed that it was "deemed a threat" to a Broadway production of the same musical.

Undaunted, and in the show-must-go-on spirit, the resourceful Mr. Thick has saved the day with a young heroine, Curley McDimple.

"It has the same flavor as the original ... full of tap dancing ... and has a charming, 11-year-old girl from Skillman, Jennifer East, as Curley," said Mr. Thick. The musical, he added, is an obvious takeoff on Shirley Temple. "It's all a spoof on the '30s."

A dance number, 'Dancing in the Rain' is a takeoff on Gene Kelly, and there is a Fred Astaire and Ginger Rogers dance, Mr. Thick added. The star of the show, a hoofer named Jimmy, is played by Princeton resident John Watson Stewart. The initial performance of Curley McDimple will be held Friday evening. Doors to the theater on Greenwood Avenue open at 7 for dessert with curtain at 8.

There will be a performance every Friday and Saturday evening and Sunday afternoon (1:30 with 2:30 curtain) through December 21. For ticket information, call 466-2766.

CARTOONS ON STAGE

At Squibb Gallery. It's not unusual to attend an art show and hear the occasional snicker wina-tha-latesta-event such response is certainly not what the artist usually hopes to elicit from a public showing of his work

In this show, the artists would be disappointed if hearty laughter - or at least a warm chuckle or two — were not forthcoming.

On display are original works including all the white-outs and tape-overs - of artists ranging from Rube Goldberg and Beetle Bailey comic strip creator Mort Walker, to veteran caricaturist Al Hirschfeld and Princeton's own Henry Martin (who organized the show).

Since the exhibit is meant to benefit the McCarter Theater, many of the works have a theatrical theme. There are zany animal acts, husband wife face-offs ("And I didn't drag you out to see it. I. merely said it was supposed to be good"), backstage tiffs, audience responses to less than four star performances (**) sure envy my foot at's asleep a and typical New Yorker cockful party chatter Tadely Eve begun to dabble. m quality?

Even in such a simple cartoon show, a few works prove a bit abstruse for some viewers Arnold Roth's Proimpleis?" has the venerable Esquite mar old Fsky striding down the street while being besieged from the sidelines by two 'prosupters' holding up thick books and pairs of angel's wings. Various theories were offered by opening night viewers on the car-"meaning Fortunately, its creator was there to clear away ambiguity. The prompters were producers eager to have Esky invest in their latest shows ie to panels by Boris Drucker, a steel beam accidentally falls off the top of a construction crane. On hitting the sidewalk, it buckles, creating an instant di Suvero-type sculpture. In the last panel it's been enshrined in a mini-art park, and is being attended by a clutch of admiring gallery-goers

There are three Al Hirschfeld's here, on a colorful gouache that comes as a surprise to fans of the caricaturist's better known black and white line drawings. Although none of the signatures are embellished with the tiny numeral "Nina seekers" use as a marker to set them on their weekly search, collectors of "Nina's" should peer closely anyway. They lurk in each of these works.

(A cartoon by Roland Michaud pays tribute to the dedicated Nina searchers: "I don't know why I spend half of every Sunday looking for Nina's," a man growls to his wife.)

Some of these wry comments on life are not so much "funny" as small gems of the illustrator's art, such as John Huehnergarth's "Do Something Creative," a marvelous construction, sort of a mohile caravansary loaded down with wizards, knights on horseback, legions of small animals, a caveman and computer hacker, stiltwalkers, firecrackers and Dagwood sandwiches — all being drawn along hy a tiny gray mouse.

George Booth is also here, but not his familiar cast of characters - the ceaselessly ironing housewife, philosophizing husband, squadrons of less than top-breed cats, the sullen bull terrier, or the everexuberant Mrs. Rittenhouse.

Booth admits to having but four cats, and says the dog

> Some of the studies are of architectural details such as a door and stairway highlighted by a ray of sunlight; others are of close-up street scenes. All are worked out in a wintersummer palette of blues, greens, purples and whites.

These works are easy on the eye and the adroit hand of a master illustrator is apparent in each of the various renditions. There is also a delightfully tender portrait of a little girl holding a Raggedy Ann doll, which shows that the artist's range extends beyond manmade construcitons.

Pay attention Princeton football fans. Let's not waste much time this week trying to dissect the Tigers' 33-28 loss to William & Mary. We've got bigger fish

Old Nassau has been losing games of this type for years now, and frankly it has become boring to try to analyze why. The well-worn script for last Saturday's defeat at Palmer Stadium has been enacted many times before. Only the opponents are different.

The Tigers fall behind big in the first half, catch up, and sometimes actually take the lead in the second, then lose it and eventually the game, as a last-minute rally fails. Stick the William & Mary contest in the "L" column and forget it.

Referee Don Kober Is Only Human, But He Really Blew It in Philadelphia

God knows referees and umpires are only human, but don't let anybody tell you Don Kober had to make a split-second decision two Saturdays ago in the third quarter of the Princeton-Penn football game.

As the head official, he had plenty of time to think about what he was doing, when he overruled two members of his officiating staff who had thrown penalty flags during Chris Flynn's controversial punt return for a touchdown. Kober just plain didn't know his rulebook, when he disallowed the penalty and allowed the touchdown to stand. Basically, the rule states that when a player signals for a fair catch, the receiving team cannot advance the ball under any circumstances.

The ball had already been brought back to the Penn 20-yard line, when Kober, possibly influenced by Penn coach Jerry Berndt screaming from the sidelines, the partisan crowd of more than 33,000, or both, decided it was a legitimate play and waived off the penalty flags thrown by his associates

He received a reprimand from ECAC headquarters, but Penn got a touchdown that tied the game, and eventually went on to win. Given the Quakers' momentum at that point, they might have pulled out a victory anyway, but we'll never

Head coaches like Ron Rogerson can't be expected to quickly check out the rulebook while standing on the sidelines, but it might not be a bad idea for one of his assistants, especially one of those sitting up in the press box and in touch by telephone, to have one handy

It came back strong in the third period, finally stopping the Indians' offense, and drew to 27-21 when Butler ran three yards around right end. He was back in business soon again when Yagiello fumbled at his 40. Three plays later, Chris Ratliff bulled over from the one, and Princeton had a 28-27 lead at the start of the fourth quarter.

Unfortunately, the Tiger offense was not heard from again. It got three more chances to put more points on the scoreboard, but could manage just two first downs. Meanwhile, William & Mary used a trick play to cover 51 yards through the air, and moved the rest of the way downfield for the winning touchdown.

Two weeks ago Penn ended Princeton's dreams of an Ivy title; now William & Mary has closed out hopes for a winning season. If this Tiger team still PHS IS ELIMINATED In Field Hockey Tournament. The Princeton High School field hockey team found out last week how hard it is to repeat.

The defending Central Jersey Group 3 state champions were eliminated Friday, 4-1, in the round by North first Hunterdon.

PHS coach Joyce Jones, who also guided the Little Tigers to a state title in lacrosse last spring, took the loss hard. "My expectations were very high," she said.

Jones felt her team did not rise to the challenge, when in the second half, with North Hunterdon holding a 2-1 lead, the Lions' goalie Debbie Malangone made a superh save on a penalty stroke shot by Aileen Causing.

It was still 2-1 and anybody's game, recalled Jones, "but that moment, I felt, was the turning point of the game. It seemed to increase the intensity for North Hunterdon but just the opposite for us.

"I felt we turned in our uniforms at that point. Our mental concentration just politely walked off the field and got on the hus.

"I believe you play to the last split second, no matter what the situation," Jones continued. "That's what wins - and defends — titles. You fight to the end with a sense of pride and accomplishment. We didn't have that. I am more disappointed at that than at losing the game."

For the Lions, who were playing on their home field, it was a measure of revenge for last year when they were eliminated from the state competition by one goal by PHS

Just 40 seconds into the second half, Beth Gromlowicz evaded three PHS defenders and went in on Tobin one-onone and scored. Then came the turning point.

Hockey Season to Open Here Friday against Cornell: Strongest Tiger Team in Years Aims for Winning Mark

There are probably so many for who ECAC cooches fovor) football team is going to suffer its annual choke attack against Yale in Palmer Stadium this Saturday, that few are aware a good, solid Tiger hockey team will begin its season in Baker Rink Friday evening.

Coach Jim Higgins' skaters kick off a 30-game schedule latter saw little ice time last with home contests against Saturday, both starting at 7:30. This could be the start of something big.

Higgins enters his ninth season here, coming off one of Old Nassau's most successful marked the first time in 17 the post-season playoffs. It finished the regular season with a 12-12-2 mark, the first time it has reached the .500 level in as many years.

This winter, with all but two of his players returning, Higgins will be aiming for a winning season and a higher finish on the ECAC ladder. The Tigers were the last team to qualify for the playoffs, and champion RPI in the first round. Their season ended quickly two games later.

Quality Players Returning. Steve MacDonald and Rob Scheuer have graduated (the year), but a wealth of talent Cornell Friday and Colgate returns from three good recruiting years. In goal, on defense, and up Iront, the Tigers have quality players at all positions.

Foremost among them is probably the best defenseman ever to wear the Orange and hockey seasons. Last year Black. Co-captain Cliff Abrecht, an all-Ivy first team years Princeton advanced to selection last year, has a well deserved reputation as one of the East's top players, and has rewritten virtually all of the scoring records by a Princeton defenseman. A major force in keeping opposing skaters away from the Princeton net, Abrecht still managed to share team scoring honors with 28

No Respect for Tigers

If the Princeton hockey team is going to move up in the ECAC standings, it will come as a surprise to the other ECAC coaches.

In a pre-season poll, the Tigers have been picked to linish ninth in the 12-team league, a spot that would not get them into playoffs among the first eight finishers. The balloting for places seven through nine was close, with only two points separating Vermont (54), Colgate (53) and Princeton (52).

Harvard (144 points) was a unanimous choice to knock RPI out of first place this winter. The Engineers, who landed in third place with 116 points behind Cornell with 127, lost several of their top players to the NHL. Following them are Yale (114), Clarkson (97), and St. Lawrence (82).

There is a big gap between the first six teams and the final half dozen, with Brown (45), Dartmouth (35) and Army (0) rounding out the voting. The Cadets still play each team only once, and will begin a full league schedule next year.

An early indication of how well Princeton will do in ECAC play this winter will come Saturday evening against Colgate. If the Tigers can't handle the Raiders on their own ice. dreams of a better finish this season may be just that.

His save percentage of .894 broke the record held by Ron Dennis. In addition to Shea, who saw action in 12 games and earned a 4.0 goal against average, senior Tony Manory will be in reserve.

More Scoring Needed. Finishing off an offensive thrust with a goal has been one of the Tigers' main problems in recent years. They need more scoring power to turn the close games their way; and maybe this season they'll get it. Six of the seven players who scored in double figures last winter return, led by co-captain Pat Brodeur.

Brodeur tied Abrecht for scoring honors, and led the team in goals with 14. Seniors Tim Oshier and Tom Schustarich return with valuable experience; Oshier was third in scoring with 21 points and Schustarich had several twogoal games.

Four juniors will also get plenty of ice time, Allan Gray (18 points), Tim Driscoll (16), John Rocco and Dave Downing. Rocco got off to a good start with a hat trick against Dartmouth, but missed several later games with a separated shoulder.

Add to this another pair of strong skaters, senior Danni Titus and sophomore Dave Umland, plus the return of Bill Brady, a top point-getter two years ago who sat out last season, and the potential to put the puck in the net is definitely
